A non-profit corporation supporting The Arboretum of Los Angeles County

"Gardening is theater," exclaimed Nancy Goslee Power, during a recent meeting at her Santa Monica Studio, "the style gardens at The Los Angeles Garden Show will reflect this sense of the dramatic that gardening provides."

These words, spoken by one of the most talented and prolific garden designers in the United States, set the stage for "Gardens of Our World" -Havens of the Hemispheres, The Los Angeles Garden Show, at The Arboretum, Wednesday, October 18 through Sunday, October 22.

Supervisor Michael Antonovich serves as Honorary Chair of the October event, a happening of significance to all of the Los Angeles County and Southern California in its scope and magnitude.

Renowned landscape and garden designers from throughout Southern California bring the Show to life as they interpret the theme in their unique Style Gardens.

James R. Watterson, vice-president of public relations/special events of Robinsons May, brings a special sense of style to the Garden Show with the participation of Robinsons May as the Presenting Sponsor.

Among the highlights of Watterson's special events team is Celebrity Tablescapes with several tented pavilions featuring "lifestyle settings" created by Southern California's leading designers.

Another Watterson brainchild is the Celebrity Flower Shop featuring top floral designers' tributes to famous people who have roses named in their honor. Audrey Hepburn, Elizabeth Presenting Sponsors Robinsons-May and The Los Angeles Times, to benefit the California Arboretum Foundation.

October 18 - 22 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily

Tickets, $5 prior to opening day, $6 at the gate. Group tickets of 20 or more purchased in advanced, $4.50 each. Member advance Sale Tickets, $4.* Tickets available at Ticketmaster, all 180 locations beginning Sept. 11.

Free admission normally available to members does not apply during The Los Angeles Garden Show.

Taylor, Barbara Bush, Ingrid Bergman, Opera Diva Maria Callas and Lucille Ball are among these treasured few.

Especially designed cooking demonstrations will showcase the most elegant preparation of fresh produce and herbs, using Robinsons•May kitchenware, to inspire all gardeners to have edible landscaping in their repertoire.

Gardening enthusiasts will enjoy the opportunity to browse "shoppers haven," at the Marketplace.

Living Arts of Old Pasadena offers unique hand-crafted chimes, while Tropical Treasures provides attendees with an opportunity to grow their very own exotic plants.

Exhibitors from throughout North America and Great Britain guarantee shopping at the Marketplace of the Los Angeles Garden Show will be a unique and exciting experience.

More than forty educational seminars are planned during the five day event, ranging from headliner lecturers to presentations by gardening experts. Garden designer Ryan Gainey presents a Style Garden and will serve as a headliner lecturer along with the fabulous C.Z. Guest, a name that signifies taste, quality and expertise in gardening, writing and presentation.

A gala preview party, chaired by Pasadena resident Alyce Williamson, opens the festivities Tuesday evening, October 17. Guests will savor dinner-bythe-bite, enjoy entertainment with an international flavor and a preview of the show prior to the public opening Wednesday, October 18 at 9 a.m.

A Job Well Done

At The Arboretum employees enjoy their work and we have been very fortunate in attracting such people. For instance, James Dale Witt put his whole heart into his work while he was a Senior Arboretum Gardener. Dale's love went into every job he did. He was very helpful and well liked by both staff and visitors.

Dale knows design, plants and most important of all, that if you prepare the area right in the first place, it will be easier to take care of later. He also found that, if he explained what he wanted to his staff, they would give him what he wanted. The big improvement in the way The Arboretum looks today is greatly due to Dale's hard work and dedication.

Dale received a well deserved promotion within the Parks Department, but you may still see him around because his office is located at The Arboretum.

Although, he no longer is developing and maintaining our grounds, he will always be welcome here and someday we hope to have him back on our staff.

Over the years our Arboretum has had some very good employees but sometimes their contributions are not fully appreciated until they leave. When you are visiting The Arboretum and see something you like, let the employees know. Say hello and tell them you appreciate what they are doing. If you are particularly impressed with someone's service, let me know as well. Visitors tend to report their complaints more often than their compliments.

It is because of our employees and the volunteers who dedicate so many hours of their time that we are able to have such a fine garden.

Garden Show Excitement

The Los Angeles Garden Show excitement is upon us! With Robinsons•May and The Los Angeles Times as presenting sponsors, the magnitude and quality of the event being planned should come as no surprise! The enthusiasm of vendors, suppliers, land-scape designers from all over the country, as well as garden hobbyists, is overwhelming. I am confident that the five day event will be a world class production!

The Foundation is pleased to offer special opportunities for our members to be a part of The Garden Show. For starters, a discounted advance sale ticket price of $4.00 is available by sending in the reservation form along with your payment. PLEASE TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS ONE-TIME OFFER, available only through this newsletter.

Another opportunity is to sign up as a Garden Show volunteer! Because the event is a big undertaking for the Foundation, with an anticipated audience of 40,000, we would welcome your help! We will have a volunteer orientation the end of September with a walk through of the layout of the grounds involved, and answer any questions which come up. To whet your interest, here are some of the volunteer opportunities:

- Lectures/Education Pavilion: hosts and hostesses for the 40 different lecturers and headline speakers
- Market Place/Plant Market/Spice Gardens: hosts and hostesses to assist with specialty vendors
- Information booth/Guest relations: staffing these critical stations to assist our guests

Relax in the Volunteer Hospitality area and meet other volunteers. Hang out with the best in the horticultural/design arena. Be part of a big event and help with its success.

Give the CAF office a call at (818) 447–8207, and join the fun of making the 1995 Los Angeles Garden Show a West Coast phenomenon!

Arcadia Day at The Arboretum

Monday, September 11, is Arcadia Day at The Arboretum. Members can take this opportunity to encourage their friends and neighbors residing in Arcadia to experience The Arboretum. Tell them to call the Foundation office, (818) 447-8207 to make reservations for the 9 a.m. slide presentation and the 10 a.m. guided tram tour. The slide presentation, Plant Lore, Legend and More, will repeat at 11 a.m. A complimentary drink is offered at the Peacock Cafe, with purchase, and a present for each guest will be given out at the Gift Shop. Reservations are limited.

Plant lore, legend and more will be the theme of the NEW MEMBER TOUR conducted by SUPERINTENDENT OF THE ARBORETUM, John Provine.

An invitation will be mailed to all new members. MEMBERS WHO HAVE NOT BEEN ON A NEW MEMBER TOUR MAY CALL THE FOUNDATION OFFICE FOR RESERVATIONS.

Assistant Superintendent Tim Lindsay talks to Tour and Taste guests about the Victorian Rose Garden.

Tour and Taste Thursdays

Tour and Taste '94 offered four different twilight tours led by Arboretum specialists for a focused look at particular parts of the garden. Following each tour, guests enjoyed dinner at the Peacock Cafe Terrace. Guests had the opportunity to tour the Hugo Reid Adobe, the Victorian Rose Garden, the Mediteranean History Garden and the Tropical Forest. This year, Tour and Taste tours included the Asiatic and Northeast American Forest, the Tropical Greenhouse, the Coach Barn and a guided tram tour of The Arboretum led by John Provine.

Holidays in the Garden

This special family weekend was a success as visitors searched the Garden for Santa Claus, toured the Queen Anne Cottage and played with more than 20 baby and miniature animals at the Petting Zoo. Gift givers also enjoyed the Annual Gift Shop Open House where volunteer Arboretum elves created collectible wreaths, ornaments and hand crafted gifts. This year Holidays in the Garden will be held Saturday and Sunday, December 9th and 10th.

Visitors also had the opportuntity to vote for their favorite tree decorated by elementary school students using natural materials at the "Celebration of Trees."

Halloween Celebration

Last October, children dressed in their Halloween best, came to The Arboretum Pumpkin Patch. They listened to stories and searched for the perfect pumpkin. With the help of the peacocks and their parents, the pumpkins were decorated with materials found at The Arboretum.

An Arboretum angel is all smiles after finding her pumpkin.

Baldwin Bonanza

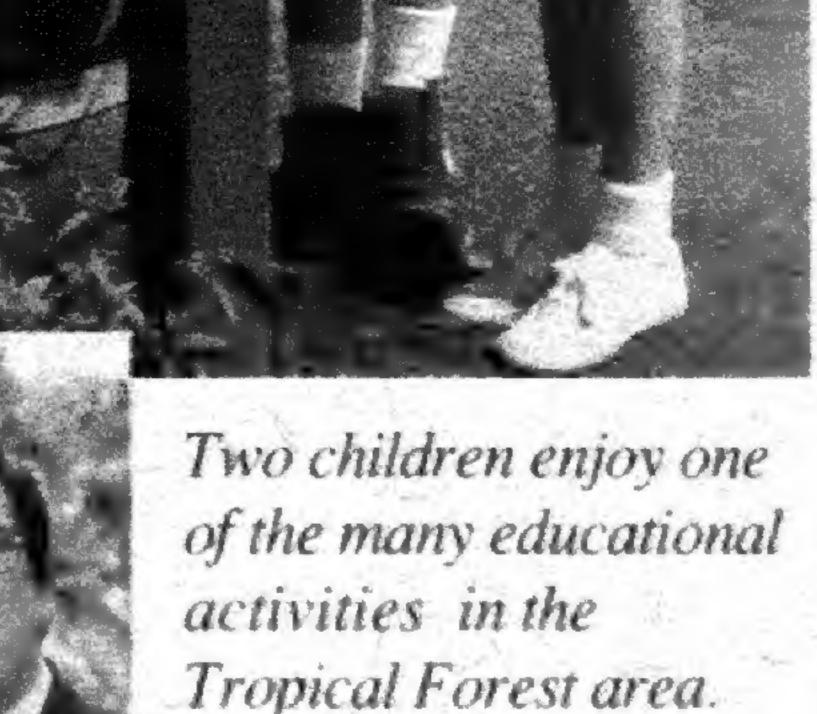

Celebrate, Celebrate, Celebrate. This year The Arboretum celebrated the 25th Silver Anniversary of the Baldwin Bonanza Plant Sale. Celebrating his second year as Master of Ceremonies was Ed Arnold, KTLA Sportscaster.

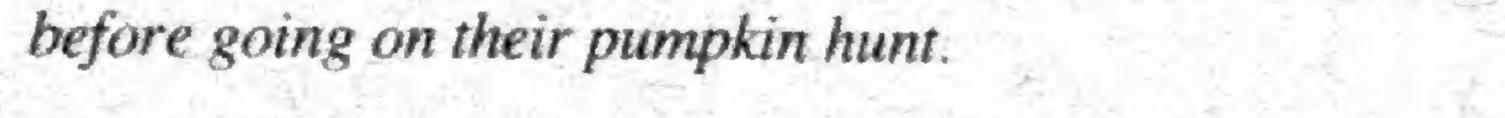

Tropical Forest Opening

Masks representative of the Tropical Forest were created by children from the Arcadia Unified School District, grades K-8. Opening day of the Forest provided a perfect background for the picturesque collection that numbered more than 300. The masks were on display throughout opening weekend to the delight of the Forest visitors.

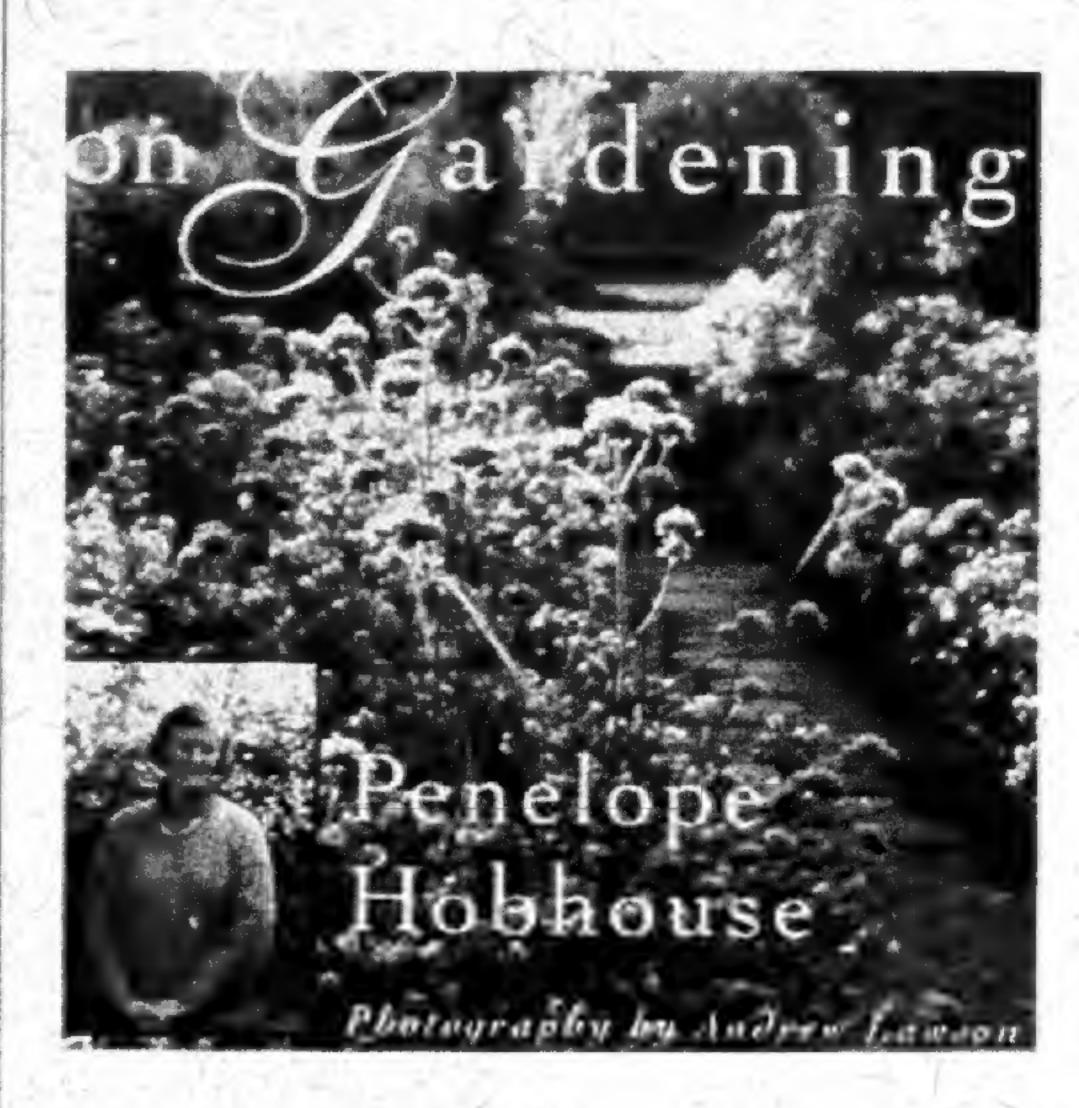

Donald Deise, President of the Caifornia Arboretum Foundation, Chris Holden, Vice-Mayor of Pasadena, Supervisor Michael Antonovich and Dennis Lojeski, Mayor of Arcadia "untied" the vine at the opening ceremonies.

I believe it was of Lady Godiva that it was said, "breeding will out." Well, now it can be said of your own Mrs. Peacock.

Since last we chatted, I took a whirlwind tour of the top markets, in order to spread the news of the Los Angeles Garden Show.

My dears, the welcome bestowed upon me was amazing. One thing, I found it was unusual that there are gardens all over the world that don't have a Mrs. Peacock. Well, lacking my counterparts, I have managed to ensure that our October 18 - 22 Garden extravaganza will not be found wanting flair. The state of Georgia was first on my itinerary. Lunch with Garden Designer Ryan Gainey, of Gainey Farms, was at the top of my dance card. He spoke well of our own Pasadena Designers Mark Bartos and Gary Jones, of Hortus. On my recommendation all three will present fabulous Style Gardens in our show. Back to the West Coast to meet with Jim Watterson of Robinsons May (one of our Presenting Sponsors), to discuss the Celebrity Tablescapes. I suggested incorporating an element that salutes the world's most famous fragrances. Jim loved this idea and Le Parfumerie will appear under his creative direction. You all know of my passion for roses. Nothing would do but to have top floral designers present tributes to celebrities who have roses named in their honor. Just the softest whisper in Jim's ear and it is done. We are of shared vision. Did I mention the wonderful chat I had with Katherine Mak in the office of Supervisor Antonovich? The Supervisor is an Honorary Chair of the Show, and Katherine wanted to meet me. From there to another Presenting Sponsor, The Los Angeles Times. Mary Lou Loper, Richard Bryant and Bob Smaus all agog to see me. Sometimes days go by between my visits to Times Mirror Square. Obtaining exhibitors from throughout North America and Great Britain kept me flying from tree to tree for days, but now that all is in place, I can say that The Los Angeles Garden Show, "Gardens of Our World" - Havens of the Hemispheres, will have it all! So you can still see, I'm still dancing as fast as I can. And my Empire is intact.
